Reece McGill-Camplin shortlisted as Finance Broker of The Year

Reece McGill-Camplin from Real Estate Investment Finance has been shortlisted as a finalist for The Australian Broking Awards 2022, for the Broker of The Year category.

The Adviser Australian Broking Awards recognises leading individuals, brokerages, and aggregation groups across Australia. These awards are the benchmark for excellence around Australia and recognises those who are positively influencing the broking industry.

The finalist list, which was announced on Thursday, 07th of July, features over 230 high-achieving finalists across 28 submission-based categories.

Becoming a finalist is regarded as a great achievement. Being shortlisted recognises excellence from a national level and builds a great reputation for forward moving finalists in the broking industry.

Editor of the Adviser, Annie Kane, said that "The Australian Broking Awards honour the leading lights of the mortgage and finance advisers across Australia...This year, the competition is stronger than ever as brokers continue to delight borrowers and be the preferred channel of choice."

Reece McGill-Camplin, Broker at Real Estate Investment Finance, said that he was very excited to have reached this stage of the Australian Broking Awards. "To have been shortlisted is an achievement in itself, especially considering the volume of nominations the Australian Broking Awards would receive." "I look forward to August 19th and congratulate the other finalists," he added.
